

2018/神戸大学/英作文対策 No1

People sometimes say, "Ask the old, and you will know the new". What does this proverb mean? Describe your idea about it, showing a concrete example. The answer must be written in English (around 40 words)

It means that something new exists in the old thing.

You tend to meet it when you learn the classical.

For example, it is often said that history is repeated.

You can deal with the difficulties that the society faces and will face in the future by learning the history.

When you'd like to find something new in your life, what actions will you take? Describe two concrete actions and their reasons. The answer must be expressed in around 60 words in English.

Firstly, I will go on a trip alone and be friends with someone who is different from me in terms of hobbies and interests.

This is because he or she lets me know a new world I have never been interested in.

Secondly, I will clean up my room.

The reason is that cleaning-up will refresh me and make me notice what I have never noticed. 66

Something new is sure to be found not by chance, but by preparing for it in advance. 83
